This year's national championships were the largest yet, with a total of 186 entries across the six weapons – 26% more than last year. Held once again in the excellent Gloucester Leisure Centre, they were run smoothly by Hilary Arnold and John Mason, with only an occasional glitch in compiling pools.

First away was men's sabre. With a certain inevitability, Richard Cohen flew in from New York, cut a swathe through the opposition to claim a record 11th title, and flew out again. The final pool was clear-cut, although Mark Hall came within a hit of forcing a three-way barrage, just going down to Richard 4-5 to finish third. Runner-up was Jim Philbin, with Chris Prett fourth, Mike Compton fifth and Richard Bonehill in a respectable sixth place, having recently become more accustomed to brandishing something rather heavier than a fencing sabre in his role as swordmaster during the filming of a new Sharpe series in India.

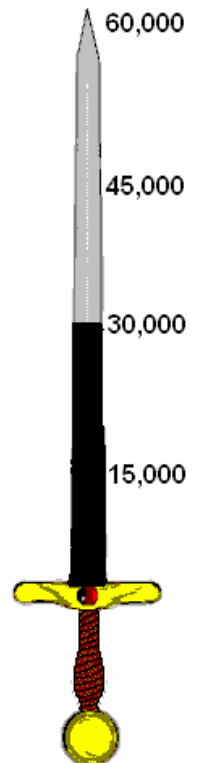

Fifteen women battled through a poule unique to decide the outcome of their sabre championship. But Lynne Bornemisza, last year's runner-up, had to sit out the proceedings with a broken foot inflicted on her by a clumsy pony. Jane Hutchison emerged undefeated, having carved her way through the field with ruthless efficiency, conceding only 15 hits in 14 fights, to claim her fourth consecutive title. Sue Benney dropped just two to come second, with Yvonne Walls third on 11 victories and Jenny Morris fourth with nine. Both Hilary Philbin and Sarah Kellett collected eight wins, but Hilary was eight hits ahead to finish fifth.

In the absence of last year's winner, Mike Questier, and the champion for the previous 4 years, Graham Paul, this year's men's foil championship was wide open. Seven fencers were undefeated after two rounds of pools and all contested the title in the top group. So evenly matched were they that after everyone had won and lost two fights Hilary Arnold faced the nightmare prospect of a seven-way barrage. However, the last few fights dropped Nick Stokes, Graham Thornton, Simon Hartley and Jim Philbin into places four to seven respectively, leaving the top three from three different age categories to barrage for the title. In the event, newcomer Tony Bartlett, just 50, proved a popular winner, cleverly adjusting to the spectacular foil play of Rob Bruniges (runner-up) and the lightning remises of Brian Causton (third).

New veteran Jane Clayton swept through the women's foil pools undefeated, in the process beating reigning champion Clare Halsted twice and leaving her one of five seeking three places in the top pool. By the narrowest of margins – one hit scored – Clare was consigned, along with Lynda Norrie, to the second group of six, while Sarah Kellett, Moya McNamara and Sue Benney squeezed through to join Jane, Hilary Philbin and Gillian Worman. There was little to separate the top four in the final, Gillian edging out Jane, both on three victories, for the bronze, while Hilary and Sarah topped the pool with four wins each. In the barrage Hilary avenged her defeat in the pool by beating Sarah 5-3 to collect her ninth title.

Men's épée had the largest entry of any veterans' championship so far, 55, but was missing its reigning champion, as Ralph Johnson was injured. Only four emerged from the pools without loss – Bill Osbaldeston, Mike Bradbury, Gerry Simpson and newcomer Neal Mallett. Four others had just one defeat, but only two of them could be promoted to the top group of six. Robin Davenport was three hits clear and went up fifth, but Howard West and Jonathan Stanbury had an equal indicator, Howard going up with one more hit scored. Lawrence Burr was also unlucky to lose out on hits. After defeating Howard, Neal seemed on his way to his first veterans' title, but Mike claimed his scalp with a sparkling performance, leaving Neal and Howard equal on four victories. On a count of hits, Gerry was third, ahead of Robin and Bill, with Mike in sixth place. In the barrage Neal's excellent distance and crisp parry-ripostes gave him a convincing 5-1 win over Howard.

After the women's épée pools, eight fencers were equal on victories chasing the last place in the top group. Kate Elvin was successful and Sue Hannay particularly unlucky, since she fell into group three and could have finished the day losing just one fight yet coming 13th. Such is the lottery of this system. The final pool hung in the balance until the very end. Janet Cooksey, champion for the past 2 years, was on course for a third consecutive title when she dropped her last fight against Jane Hutchison. Jenny Morris needed to win her last fight against Kate Smith to force a barrage with Janet and just did so, 5-4. Kate had two other 4-5 defeats, which dropped her into third place, ahead of Kate Elvin, Jane and Mavis Thornton. In the barrage Jenny reversed her pool score against Janet to win 5-3 and take her first veterans' title.

"With his makeshift skirt and his pretty blue glove, Richard hoped to get away with entering the women's sabre" Jim Philbin

Below are the contributions received, and I really do know what Richard was thinking, read on to find out! In no particular order

"I appear to be the only one to fully understand the new 600 newton towel rule."

"Drat - when I said I could beat him with 1 hand tied behind my back, I didn't mean my sword arm!"

"Richard had to explain to the referee that his M&S sponsorship deal meant he had to wear 1 of their towels on the piste. "

I should have read the instructions: wash light colours separately'.

"You could try Scissors, Dennis, but I recommend you try Rock this time."

"...Montreal was never like this!"

"I hope no-one notices I've cut my hand".

"You borrow some-one's jacket for the day and all you get is silly people trying to turn you into a joke."

And from Richard.....

"Must remember to return the cup. Must remember to return the cup. Must remember...."

Not only can I not remember the signal I've forgotten my blasted racket"

"If today's Friday it must be Austria..."

" If I win the 100 club I could get the handbag that goes with this skirt"

World Championship Fundraising

You will have seen from the front cover that our fundraising activity has taken the total raised over £30,000.

The NVA 100 Club is now fully subscribed thanks to the salesmanship of Marcia Stretch and John Mason over the weekend of the National Championships. The first draw took place during the National Championship Dinner on the 11th March at the Holiday Inn Gloucester. The winners were Myra Whall £250, Clare Halsted £150 and Janet & Peter Baron £100. All three winners were at the dinner. The second half of the draw will take place during the Xmas Dinner on 18th November in Coventry.

The NVA Lottery, which is an important feature in our fundraising activity, is now launched and you will all have received an allocation of 5 books of tickets to be sold. Several people have already sold their allocation and returned the counterfoils and cash. Chasers will be contacting members soon to check on the progress of ticket sales and to urge you to sell at least your allocation. Don't forget that the NVA is awarding a prize of £250 to the member selling the most tickets. The Draw will take place during the Age Group Qualifiers Dinner on 3rd June at the Novotel, Milton Keynes.

Other fund raising activities are ongoing. Further commercial sponsorship is being sought. Bath Sword Club held a very enjoyable Social/Video evening and another is planned, with the proceeds being donated to the World Championship fund.

New Range of Equipment for the More Senior Vets

It would seem that, at last, a company is about to introduce a range of equipment purpose designed for the more senior veteran fencers who are perhaps not quite so nimble as they were or are beset by some of the problems facing us all as we get older.

Len Paolo Equipment of Oldham start by introducing the Senna Leg lift; an indispensable aid to footwork, with an overdrive facility for the odd lunge or balestra.

Said to have been inspired by the Wallace & Gromit film “The Wrong Trousers”, it even has a feature on the luxury model to allow the veteran to mount a raised piste should the need ever arise.

The surface to air, heat seeking point of the Len Paolo foil, when combined with the heads-up interior mask display incorporating opponent detecting satellite navigation system, guarantees, they say, that never again will an elderly vet suffer the humiliation of a whitewash against a younger fencer.

It is often difficult to visit the washroom with sufficient speed between poule bouts, so the company’s selection of Incontinence Breeches are just the job.

Not only 1600N, thus reducing the all-round embarrassment of an on-the-piste puncture, but also guaranteed to 10 atmospheres.

The elderly male vet doesn’t need to rely on a crowd for support, he can wear his own from a fetching range of lamé finishes, and for the ladies a selection of inflatable chest protectors purpose designed by the company’s hot air ballooning division to allow you to float over the piste with consummate grace.

Naturally, the discreet support hose is indistinguishable from the normal fencing sock, although the varicose vein patterning (choice of colours) is a little of a giveaway to the casual observer.

The company’s pièce de resistance is the all new, OAP Electric Box. They have excelled themselves with a discreet “fencer activated” reverse current that delivers a short 240 volt stimulus to provide a guaranteed straight arm coupled with a surprising 12 foot lunge. Len Paolo say they are also working on a resuscitation unit as an extra accessory for this box, but have encountered FIE difficulties over the use of oxygen.

Finally, the combined hearing aid with “Halt” recognition and speaker amplifier containing a selection of responses from “I am en garde” to “But it was my parry & riposte – I think” completes the selection of items.

Never again will there be the need for claims of passivity from an opponent!
